

Celebs battling the ageing process

These stars are looking increasingly freakish due to their cosmetic treatments – or giving them up!

KYLIE'S 'PILLOW FACE'

Last year, Kylie Minogue, 43, boasted she'd stopped using Botox, claiming: "I won't go near it, I have lines." But out in London last week, the singer's appearance suggested she may have resorted to the needle again. She hit back at critics on Twitter, writing: "So I have been filmed out in public the last 3 nights & suddenly it is 'reported' I cannot move my face????? #whatisthehellwiththis?!" But experts say the star – whose three-year relationship with model Andrej Velencic, 33, was rumoured to be over last week – has a tell-tale "pillow face." Lesley Reynolds Khan, of the Harley Street Skin Clinic, says: "Kylie's naturally beautiful, but now she looks plumped up due to cheek and lip filler. Her right eyebrow is arched at a different angle from the left – possibly a sign of too much Botox." Leading Harley Street plastic surgeon

Ms Angelica Kavouni adds: "Lips and cheeks lose volume with age, so I suspect Kylie has had help in both areas." Kylie's admitted to dabbling in cosmetic treatments, but ruled out surgery, saying: "You're not yourself if you do that."

'Teri's swapped Botox for fillers'

She famously posted an online picture of herself to prove she's all natural, but experts say Teri's face may be showing signs of having fillers to hold back the years.

On the red carpet in Beverly Hills recently, Desperate Housewives star Teri, 46, seemed to have more wrinkles around the eyes, but a suspiciously smooth forehead and cheeks.

And plastic surgeon Ms Angelica Kavouni says the star may only have recently quit Botox treatments – which last three to six months – opting for filler injections instead. She says: "In Teri's lower face, the skin is loosening with heavy folds forming around her mouth and jaw."

"If she has stopped Botox, it must have been quite recently, as she still has nicely arched eyebrows and no forehead or smile lines, which are a tell-tale sign of active Botox treatment in someone of her age."

"In addition, the contours of her cheeks are very well defined, which leads me to think she may have had an injectable filler treatment in this area."

Last year, she posted a pic of herself pulling faces on Facebook, implying she hadn't had Botox, but admitting she'd tried it. She wrote: "Love it or hate it, my face that is, no surgery, no implants... (Oh) ever toy with fillers or Botox over the years? Yes. (But) tell me, does this look Botoxed to you?"

SJP'S GONE 'NATURAL'

Photographed in Australia last week, Sarah Jessica Parker, 46, looked as if she had aged considerably in the space of two months. Experts believe the change is due to previous treatments wearing off – and say the Sex And The City star appears to have had other cosmetic work, too.

Gwen Davies, of the Transform Cosmetic Surgery Group, says: "The recent photos show signs of ageing below her eyes. At her age, you'd expect to see more crow's feet at the side of the eyes, but this area seems smooth, indicating use of Botox, which in turn could emphasise wrinkles under the eyes."

And plastic surgeon Ms Angelica Kavouni says: "Sarah is showing classic signs of ageing, with heavy under-eye lines and facial folds. However, the folds around her nose could be due to post-filler treatment disappearing, leaving stretched skin. She may have decided to age naturally now."

Mum-of-three Sarah once said: "I believe in ageing gracefully – and, of course, trying as many anti-ageing creams as possible!"

'Abbey's had fillers to stop her looking gaunt'

She's recently been pictured with inflated lips and Abbey Clancy's new look may be due to cosmetic help after weight loss left her gaunt, say experts.

Size 8 Abbey, 25, gave birth to daughter Sophia Ruby in March, and revealed just weeks later she weighs less than she did pre-pregnancy. Anti-ageing expert Lesley Reynolds Khan of Harley Street says: "Abbey seems to have had way too much filler injected in her lips. They're lumpy and unbalanced. She's gone too far, she looks very unnatural now. Her forehead is very smooth, which indicates Botox."

Abbey recently told Closer that she credits her looks to genes, saying: "I'm blessed with good genes. My mum is 51 and hasn't had work done, but she looks like my sister."

'Jess looks twice her age'

FOUR's Jessica Wright, 26, has always been open about the boob job she had earlier this year, boosting her from 32C to a 32DD. But plastic surgeon Ms Angelica Kavouni says Jess may have also had other treatments, saying: "Jess looks almost twice her age in the second picture. I suspect she's had nose-to-mouth fillers, as her definition has disappeared. She looks to have had Botox to her forehead and eyes, which is why she has no and she's showing signs of marked plumping as her natural cupid's bow has gone. The bridge of her nose also looks more defined, which could be from nose-redefining surgery."

After her boob job, Jess told Closer: "I am so pleased I'll never look back."
